

The Practical Implications of Parts F, J and L 2010

We all know that we need to make buildings more energy efficient in order to meet the UK's zero carbon commitment, but how can this be achieved?

Following consultation with industry, the Government is introducing changes to Parts F, J and L of the Building Regulations on 01 October this year, to help us meet this commitment, and ultimately improve the UK's building stock, making homes, offices and shops warmer and more cost effective to run.

This course will explain:

- What changes have been made
- Why the changes have happened; and;
- What implications the changes have on you.
